Advisers and Invasion

Editor—One point in your timely editorial "Insane Talk of Invading Cuba" (August 31) suggests appalling possibilities.

We can hardly expect international acceptance of our exclusive right to maintain armed forces along the borders of other great powers.

Khrushchev has promised to take action in defense of Cuba in case of attack by the United States. What Soviet counteraction would be more logical and effective than invasion of Turkey and every other border state which has "U. S. military advisers and Air Force and CIA units?" With equal justification, the Chinese could drive us out of neighboring Vietnam.
